Now lets get on with our Sports Arbitrage eBook...

INTRODUCTION

Congratulations on purchasing the Global Ebooks guide to Sports Arbitrage Investment. I have underlined the word investment because it is vital that you understand this is NOT gambling in any way. This guide will show you everything you need to know to produce a regular income from a very profitable loophole that has been brought about by the internet and the masses of online bookmakers that have (and continue to) sprung up. This wonderful little loophole can never be regulated or closed down and the beauty of it is that as the internet grows, the number of opportunities that this loophole will make available will multiply.

Of course you do get details of 2 websites that will actually show you a list of available arbitrage opportunities on a daily basis but please read this book through from start to finish before starting to trade. Knowledge is king in anything and everything that we do, and this particular knowledge will help you to achieve a very good income source everyday for as long as the internet is around. A list of trades is very valuable and will save you a lot of time once you understand the mechanics of what we are doing here. However, once you know how to calculate arbitrage opportunities yourself you will be able to spot a whole world of investment opportunities that may not be listed on the websites. In addition, there are certain times when you should not invest your money and this comprehensive guide will give you every tip, trick and secret weapon you will ever need to be successful as a sports arbitrage trader.

You have made an incredibly positive step by purchasing this guide – I wish you every success in your sports arbitrage career.

Global Ebooks

CHAPTER 1

As far as we are concerned an arbitrage is simply an anomaly that exists because the internet has truly made the world of sports betting an easy and global marketplace. There are now throngs of online bookies entering the internet betting business - more and more are also forming and this is great news for us because it will only increase the number of already plentiful arbitrage opportunities that we can pick from. An arbitrage opportunity is formed when different bookies have different prices for different outcomes in a particular sporting event. The bottom line is that we can place bets to cover both (all) outcomes with different bookies and get back more than we invested. The best way is to investigate with an example:

Example

During a ladies single game at Wimbledon between Davenport and Clijsters the bookies Tote and Victor Chandler priced the outcomes differently:

Tote - 3/1 Clijsters to win

Victor Chandler - 2/5 Davenport to win

To return £100 with Victor Chandler above we would have to invest £71.42. To return £100 with Tote for a Clijsters win we would have to invest £25. Our total collective investment would be just £96.42 - and whoever won the game our total return would be £100. We have just made a guaranteed 3.58% on your money within 2 hours. You can find plenty of these arbitrage opportunities each and every week.

How did we calculate how much investment is required to return £100 (including our stake)? We do a very simple calculation:

1. With V.C. the odds for a Davenport win was 2/9. To find out how much you need to invest to return £100 simply make the following calculation:

(a) $2/5 + 1 = 1.4$

(b) $100/1.4 = £71.43$

2. With Tote the odds for a Clijsters win was 3/1. To return £100 (including our stake):

(a) $3/1 + 1 = 4$

(b) $100/4 = £25$

Total Investment ($£71.43 + £25$) = $£96.42$

Total Return REGARDLESS OF OUTCOME £100

Total Profit ($£100 - £96.42$) = $£3.58$ risk free.

Do you see the beauty of this? No matter who won the game you are guaranteed a certain profit of 3.58% - this is a phenomenal return for an investment lasting just a couple of hours that carries absolutely zero risk. The great news is that arbitrage opportunities like these happen many times on a daily basis.

Example 2

In an NFL game between Atlanta & Jacksonville the bookmakers priced the game in the following way:

Atlanta 1.85 at Gamebookers

Jacksonville 2.50 at William Hill

Is there an arbitrage opportunity here? Absolutely:

1. To return £100 with Gamebookers we need to invest $(100/1.85$ for an Atlanta win) £54.
2. To return £100 with William Hill we need to invest $(100/2.5$ for a Jacksonville win) £40.

Our total investment for a guaranteed win (£54 + £40) is £94.
Our 100% guaranteed risk free return is (£100 - £94) £6.

The return in this real life example is 6%

Do you now see why you can never possibly lose when using arbitrage? You know your exact profit before a ball is even kicked or a stroke played. You need no knowledge of the sports that you bet on. You simply make this easy calculation, put on your bets and collect your free cash.

What you have learned with these real life examples is the outrageously simple calculation that we do to determine whether an arbitrage opportunity is present. In later chapters you're going to discover the secrets on how to uncover as many arbitrage opportunities a day as you want. There are certain places where high paying arbitrage opportunities can be cherry picked, and once you know the easy secrets behind this you'll be well on your way to making as much money as you want everyday for just a few minutes of work. And of course, you'll also get those two websites that will actually list the real-time arbitrage opportunities available to you right now! Just place your investments and collect your cash in a couple of hours.

WHY DO ARBITRAGE OPPORTUNITIES OCCUR?

Arbitrage opportunities occur when there are differences of opinion on a particular sporting event between two or more bookmakers. Remember that thanks to globalization and the internet you can use an online bookmaker who is based anywhere in the world. There are many reasons why bookmakers may offer wildly different odds on the same sporting event. For a start, many bookmakers overstretch themselves when offering odds – they try and cover every possible market to get as many customers as possible. This is great news for us because in doing so they will sometimes offer odds on events that they have little or no expert knowledge in. For example, a bookmaker in the USA may know very little about English Division 2 football games, and yet offer odds on them. In contrast, an English bookmaker will be much more “clued up” as to the likely outcomes from the same games. The result? Wildly different odds on the same games, and a feast of arbitrage opportunities and free money for us. And remember, everyday more and more online bookmakers are entering the highly lucrative online gambling market – this is great news for us because the number of juicy arbitrage opportunities will grow well into the future! Also, bookmakers are busy people – and when they are forced to offer odds in pressurized situations they can sometimes make mistakes! Again – leading to a nice stream of easy arbitrage pickings.

READING THE ODDS IN DIFFERENT BOOKMAKERS

This part of the eBook will help you get to grips with reading the ways that bookies express their odds. It would be good if all bookies globally just displayed their odds in a uniform way, but across the world they show them differently:

(a) Fractions - e.g. 2/1 3/1 etc

A lot of UK bookies will express odds as fractions. The top figure is the profit achieved and the bottom figure is the investment required to achieve that profit. So 2/1 means £2 profit from an investment of £1. 1/3 means a profit of £1 from an investment of £3 and so on.

(b) Decimals - A lot of European bookies express odds in terms of decimals e.g. 1.5, 3.4 etc

What you have to remember about decimals is that your stake has been included in the return - so 3.5 means your total return including stake is £3.5.

To convert a decimal into a fraction is to simply deduct 1 from the decimal - so a decimal price of 3.0 isn't 3/1 it's 2/1.

To calculate your return on a decimal bet just multiply it by your stake. So a £10 bet on 3.0 odds returns £30.

(c) US Odds

US odds have a + or - in front of them. If positive it shows your profit for every 100 staked. Thus £100 at +400 would mean you get a total return of £500 (and a profit of £400). If it has a negative sign it shows how much you need to stake to achieve a £100 profit. So -400 means you would need to bet £400 to win £100.

We have covered the basics of how to calculate an arbitrage in this chapter. Now things are going to get much more interesting as you're about to learn exactly how to identify easy arbitrage opportunities and apply them for easy profits everyday!

Now we have a firm understanding of how arbitrage works, what causes them and the mechanics of the odds system we're going to see how best to spot them, and how to organise your time for maximum efficiency. As said previously, while you will get details of two websites that will give you a list of potential arbitrage opportunities the objective here is to provide you with all the knowledge, tips and tricks to identify arbitrage opportunities for yourself – anytime you wish.

As an arbitrage trader it's vital that you construct a daily checklist of events that you wish to investigate. It's very handy to buy a diary specifically for your arbitrage trades and jot down the specific events you'll be hunting for arbitrages in. Make this a routine - for instance, perhaps on a particular Saturday you want to check the English football Premiership fixtures, the tennis fixtures and the one day cricket series between India and England. Do not randomly hunt for arbitrage opportunities without a system firmly in place.

Now that you've identified the list of events you're going to attack today, what do you do next? Let's start with the tennis fixtures between player A & player B in the below example. We will see how to go about organising ourselves to see if an arbitrage opportunity exists:

Example

You find out that the odds for Player A are as below:

Player A To Win

W.Hill 2/5

Ladbrokes 2/6

Eurobet 2/7

Scandibet 2/7

VC 2/6

And for player B...

Player B To Win

W.Hill 2/1

Ladbrokes 5/2

Eurobet 3/1

Scandibet 5/2

VC 2/1

Here it's obvious that the best 2 prices are 2/9 for player A (W.Hill) and 3/1 for player B (Eurobet). Does an arbitrage opportunity exist here? Yes:

To return a total of say £1000 on player A with W.Hill we need to invest $(2/5+1 = 1.4...then £1000/1.4)$ £714.28

To return a total of £1000 on player B with Eurobet we need to invest $(3/1+1 = 4...then £1000/4)$ £250

Our total investment to return £1000 whichever player wins is just £964. This is a clear arbitrage opportunity and you would then place £714.28 with W.Hill on player A and a further £250 with Eurobet on player B. At the end of the match you will pickup a certain profit of £35.72 - finding just 3 arbitrage opportunities a day of this kind (very achievable) will give you a daily profit of £107.16 - and a tax free monthly income of over £3000.

The traditional way to approach sports arbitrage trading is to have a daily list of sporting events and work through them one by one. The sports calendar that is provided with this guide will be very valuable to you as it details the major sporting events that take place every month. As you can see there are so many that the number of arbitrage opportunities that will become available to you will be more than you could ever invest in.

If you take this systematic approach with each sporting event you have on your checklist your chances of finding an arbitrage are very good. However there are a couple of free websites that will help you identify even more arbitrage opportunities. You should bookmark every website in this guide in a special “arbitrage folder”. The websites you should become familiar with are:

(a) www.betbrain.com - Has a wide range of sports and events to choose from and gives you the current odds of a number of bookies covering these events. This site is particularly good for identifying soccer arbitrage opportunities - it also has a section which highlights bookies information - this is useful because it's important that the bookies you use have the same trading rules - that way in the event of a freak occurrence (e.g. match being abandoned) you are not left in a situation where one bookie pays out and the other does not.

(b) www.infobetting.com - Has a long list of bookies and very useful for finding tennis arbitrage situations.

Next we will go through the specific strategies you should be aware of when looking for arbitrage opportunities in each of the specific sports that give the best arbitrage opportunities.

CHAPTER 3

ARBITRAGE IN SOCCER

The next couple of chapters will help you focus on finding arbitrage opportunities in particular sports, and the tools, tricks, tips, bookies and websites that you should use for each. This information is priceless and has taken years to formulate and perfect.

We will start with soccer, where arbitrage opportunities are almost endless thanks to global coverage of every major league in the world. The best arbitrage opportunities are to be found in the standard '90 minute result' category.

Odds comparison sites such as betbrain are very useful in finding soccer arbitrage opportunities - there are so many bookmakers that offer soccer results - and that's a very good thing for us. It ensures many opportunities to pickup free cash exist.

It's important to note that in UK many of the bookies will compile similar odds so you wouldn't find many arbitrage opportunities between say 2 UK bookies in an English Premiership game. There are however different odds to be found with European bookmakers which of course leads to arbitrage opportunities. In your quest to hunt down arbitrage investments you should open accounts with as many online bookies across the world as you can. The bookies you should take special note of with soccer are:

1. www.bet365.com
2. www.wsex.com (stands for World Sports Exchange in case you wondered)
3. www.bluesquare.com

4. www.sportingodds.com

5. www.stanleybet.com

One of the best soccer tips is to start looking at lower leagues first and work your way up instead of the other way around - remember there are very few experts on lower league football so more price differences are likely to exist here and so more arbitrage opportunities can be found.

Get News Before The Bookies

Remember that with soccer you will find that breaking news will change odds dramatically. The good news is that some bookies are much less responsive than others in changing odds to breaking news and this results in arbitrage opportunities being created. Probably the most famous example of this was the one below:

Example

In an Israel vs Austria world cup qualifying match Israel were playing at home. Due to fear of terrorism about 9 Austrian players backed out which of course weakened the team considerably - of course not all bookies responded to the news quickly - and at one stage the combination of odds included:

Israel win 11/10

Draw 5/2

Austria win 4/1

It was possible to pickup a profit of £40 on an investment of £1000 just for knowing your soccer news.

Other Soccer Markets – Arbitrage opportunities can be found in other soccer markets such as corners and total goals but these are harder to find and your main hunt should be in the results after 90 minutes area as we have talked about.

*Important Tip For ALL Your Arbitrage Trades

This applies to all your arbitrage investments you should always round up or down when you place a bet as it makes you less conspicuous. A bet such as £234.67 looks a little odd compared with £235. There is nothing illegal about arbitrage trading but if a bookmaker suspects you are an arbitrage trader they may try and restrict your bets. Another tip that applies to any sport is that you should always secure the best price first (the one that is out of line with what other bookies are offering) - as this price may not last.

CHAPTER 4

ARBITRAGE IN TENNIS

There are always big differences between the compilers of different bookmakers and tennis always produces many arbitrage opportunities.

The 2 best odds comparison sites for tennis arbitrage are www.tip-ex.com and www.infobetting.com .

IMPORTANT TIP FOR ALL YOUR ARBITRAGE TRADING!

The biggest caution when finding tennis arbitrage opportunities is to be aware that there are sometimes different bookmaker rulings when a player retires from a game.

Some bookmakers will payout in the event of a player having to retire, and others wont. When finding tennis arbitrage opportunities it's important to ensure both bookmakers that you place bets with have the same rules in the event of a retired player.

It is also the same for any sporting event where bookmakers offer odds on. As a rule you must make sure that you are aware of which bookmakers have the same rules and which do not. This is very easy to do by going to the bookmakers website and reading the rules.

Remember that the websites that you will use to look up the daily arbitrage opportunities will not be able to distinguish which bookmakers have the same rules and which do not. Of course an abandoned game in any sport is highly unlikely but we do not wish to leave anything to chance so develop this good practice early on in your sports arbitrage career!

The below are just some of bookmakers who have produced good tennis arbitrage trading opportunities in the past. Of course don't count out others and always look to open as many accounts with bookmakers as possible. This will really maximise your earning potential with sports arbitrage.

1. www.bet365.com
2. www.betinternet.com
3. www.unibet.com
4. www.willhill.com
5. www.ladbrokes.com

Tennis is a good sport for finding arbitrage opportunities - and it runs pretty much all through the year so it's worth getting involved with it as it will get you arbitrage opportunities all-year-round.

Just to illustrate, at the time of writing the draw for the Wimbledon first round had just been made - and as usual threw up a feast of arbitrage opportunities to pick and choose from. Within minutes the following matches offered free money for the taking:

1. Raymond (1.36 with Unibet) vs Fortez (4.5 with Stanbet) giving a return of 4.44%
2. Mallise (1.33 with Unibet) vs Saulnier (4.5 with Skybet) giving a return of 2.56%
3. Gimelstob (1.62 with Stanbet) vs Labadze (2.92 with Expekt) giving a return of 4.57%

4. Bouter (1.45 with Unibet) vs Galvani (3.5 with Stan James) giving a return of 2.45%

5. Krajan (3.0 with The Greek) vs Massu (1.57 with Betabet) giving a return of 2.98%

The important point to remember here is that this is not at all unusual - if anything the results were a little on the low side in producing juicy high % arbitrage opportunities, but even so there were more opportunities than could possibly be used.

CHAPTER 5

ARBITRAGE IN OTHER SPORTS

CRICKET

There are plenty of arbitrage opportunities to be found in cricket. But as with tennis it's important to understand different bookmaker rules. In county cricket this means knowing how bookmakers treat drawn matches - by far most will refund stakes in the event of a draw but a few firms do not.

In the national one day games, again you have to see how bookmakers will treat a tie - most will return stakes but again there are a couple of firms that do not. Once you check the rules once you will be comfortable placing arbitrage bets & making a consistent income from them.

The key to finding arbitrage opportunities in international cricket is to have a large number of foreign betting accounts. Different bookmakers operate to different profit margins (and foreign ones often take lower margins which create arbitrage opportunities between them and the UK).

Some of the best bookies for cricket arbitrage include:

1. www.canbet.com
2. www.centrebet.com
3. www.iasbet.com
4. www.crickbet.com.au
5. www.bet365.com

As with football keep an eye on the cricket news for events that can change prices (quickly with some bookies and very slowly with others, thus creating a nice pick of arbitrage opportunities). Sites such as www.cricinfo.com are very useful for this.

GOLF

Your best place to find golf arbitrage opportunities are in the 2 or 3 ball bets where bookies will pick either 2 or 3 golfers, the object of course is to back the best one.

You can try looking for arbitrage situations in 2 ball betting but they are less common - always check for 3 balls first.

Some of the best sites for golf arbitrage opportunities are:

1. www.eurobet.co.uk
2. www.ladbrokes.com
3. www.sportingodds.com
4. www.blucsq.com

As with any form of betting always check the bookie rules in case of exceptional events. Make this a rule and you will never go wrong.

SNOOKER

A difficult sport to predict means that opinions among bookmakers are widely divided - and this of course creates a hatful of arbitrage opportunities for us.

Again (and I do not apologise if I keep mentioning this as it really is critical) it is important to check the different bookmaker rules in the (very) unlikely event of an abandoned match. Some bookmakers will call off bets while others will regard the player that goes on to the next round as the winner. Where the bookmaker rules are different do NOT place bets - no matter how unlikely a match is to be abandoned we are after RISK FREE profits and should leave nothing to chance. The bookmakers that often create arbitrage opportunities in snooker are listed below:

1. www.sportingodds.com
2. www.totalbet.com
3. www.bluesq.com
4. Stan James (telephone bets only although you can view odds online)
5. www.tote.com
6. www.willhill.com
7. www.ladbrokes.com

MOTOR RACING

While MR arbitrage opportunities are not as common as those in the sports we've covered so far, they can produce some high paying ones when they occur. The 3 categories here are qualification, race and classification.

Qualification - Here 2 drivers race against each other but odds can change quite substantially as the day nears. Some bookmakers take the drivers practice runs seriously (and hence modify odds accordingly) while others do not.

This of course can create some very tasty arbitrage opportunities for us. The best way to spot them here is to create a table of odds before practice - and check the same odds immediately after to see where arbitrage chances have been formed.

Race - Bookies select 2 drivers and the driver finishing highest out of the 2 in the race is the bet winner. There are some big arbitrage investment opportunities to be had here - again because some bookies change their odds as they see practice results, and others just leave their original odds untouched.

Classification - A driver is 'classified' if he finishes 90% of a race, and odd compilers also have massive differences in opinions here that is great for us. The bookies worth looking at for motor racing are:

1. www.bet247.com
2. www.sportingodds.com
3. www.surreysports.com
4. Stan James (Telephone)
5. www.bet365.com
6. www.eurobet.com

CHAPTER 6

FINDING IN-RUNNING ARBITRAGE OPPORTUNITIES

An in-running game is one where the game has already started. It is possible to find arbitrage opportunities with these but these tend to be far more dynamic and it is advisable to use in-running only after the basic form of arbitrage has been mastered.

One of the reasons that in-running arbitrage opportunities are so plentiful is that bookmakers do not have time to consider all things when quoting odds - you can quite literally feast on arbitrage income everyday with in-running bets if you know where to look. We'll look at in running arbitrage opportunities sport by sport.

If you've ever seen a cricket game you'll know that just one wicket can change the direction of the game - as well as bookmaker odds that create a bountiful supply of arbitrage opportunities as the game develops.

With cricket the the arbitrage chance will tend to form only after an entire innings has been played out - in the second innings, as the wickets and boundaries begin to accumulate you will see more and more arbitrage situations being formed before your eyes. These can be found not only in the results category but also in total runs betting. Cricket is certainly one of the best sports to profit from arbitrage, both pre-match as well as in-running - and don't forget, bookmakers sometimes have to price bets with a view to balance their books rather than setting them realistically based on the probable outcome. This applies to every sport and is fantastic news for the arbitrage trader.

FOOTBALL

Steer clear of the result after 90 minutes area for in-running football. The fact is (and it can be a little surprising) there just aren't enough opportunities here to make it worth looking at. The last corners market is much better if you wish to find in-running football arbitrage situations - a 2 possibility event and plenty of 'out-of-date' prices (as most bookies see this as a secondary importance market, much to our delight). Wait until the last quarter of the match, and if the match changes dramatically (e.g. a goal is scored) you will find out of date prices that you can just secure. Remember that bookies will close the market with 80 minutes gone on the clock - remember this when placing a late arbitrage trade.

OTHERS

A moderate amount of arbitrage opportunities can be found with GOLF but patience is required, and your best chances are when a tournament is limited to 3 potential winners. Arbitrage opportunities tend to be found more often in the European tour.

With SNOOKER it takes just one moment to completely change a game. It's worthwhile following the in-running details and odds to see if there are any easy pickings to be had.

CHAPTER 7

TIPS, TRICKS & STRATEGIES

ALWAYS LOOK FOR THE ARBITRAGE

So far we've looked at a number of different sports that are likely to produce many arbitrage opportunities for you to feast on. You've already seen how just a couple of ordinary arbitrage opportunities that appear everyday can make you £100 in daily tax free profit for the least bit of work. However one thing you should never forget, is that any bet that the bookmakers offer, be it in sports, politics or generally just about anything (e.g. betting on Big Brother) is likely to produce arbitrage income opportunities for you. So wherever there is a bet, look for arbitrage income.

You're not in this business because you're interested in the sport or event you're placing an arbitrage investment on. No, you're here to make money and maximise your profit whether Man United beat Arsenal or the Green Party win the general elections. You don't care about the result because you're going to be taking money from just about every bet that the bookmakers can offer. Possibly the best thing is that you can start of with as little or as much money as you want.

THE SYSTEM

All bookmakers put their customers into categories. These include the 'loser' tag (i.e. this guy is completely hopeless at betting and all his bets should be encouraged) right upto the 'dangerous/unprofitable' tag - a better who tends to win more often than not. From your point of view, the more loser tags you can get, the better as you don't want to be labelled as an investor who takes money from the bookies - or they may just refuse to trade with you! So how do you avoid this from happening? This and other issues are looked at below.

1. Don't place bets with decimals - If the 2 sides of your proposed arbitrage investment required investments of £109.87 and £455.18 round them up/down to £110 and £455. This looks much more like a 'normal' bet, and you're less likely to set off alarm-bells with bookies.
2. Family - where possible use family and friends to set-up accounts with bookies if you have been tagged as unprofitable and they refuse to trade with you.
3. Where you know you have had a series of wins with a particular bookie, make an extra special effort to try and place the losing end of an arbitrage with him. This should lower your chances of getting tagged.
4. If you're refused a certain amount that you're trying to secure an arbitrage for, then try again after a little while. It's not uncommon to find that your full amount will be accepted just minutes after initially being refused.
5. There are certain types of equipment you can invest in to improve your efficiency at making high % arbitrage. For a start, a mobile phone is very useful - you probably already have one, but if not think about getting one. It's very useful as you can place a bet with a bookie (on their freephone number usually) while placing the other end of the arbitrage at the same time online.

6. In the event of a betting dispute check the www.ibas.co.uk website (Independent Betting Arbitration Service) for advice.

CHAPTER 9

2 WEBSITES THAT WILL LIST POTENTIAL ARBITRAGE OPPORTUNITIES EVERYDAY

This guide has armed you with all the knowledge you need to be a fine sports arbitrage trader. However finding arbitrage opportunities everyday can be a time consuming process so the websites given below are absolutely priceless to minimise the time you spend searching for arbitrage opportunities.

The below websites will show you the available arbitrage opportunities on a daily basis - in fact they are updated regularly as and when more arbitrage opportunities develop during the day. However please do note that these websites are not associated with this book or it's authors in any way so you use them entirely at your own risk.

There are also subscription services providing the same information, only they charge hundreds a year for the same information.

Please ensure you read the guidance tips below - there are certain situations where you may not be able to use the bets on the website.

1. Odds Exchange
(<http://www.oddsexchange.com/servlet?cat=surebets>)
2. Betbrain (<http://www.betbrain.com/odds/surebets.jsp?site=0>)

BONUS THIRD WEBSITE

3. Zazewe (<http://www.zazewe.com/free/dms/DMS.HTM>)

There are 2 main points in using these sites to find your daily arbitrage opportunities:

1. Sometimes, some of the bookmakers listed will not accept single bets - this should not happen often but when it is the case you cannot use the bet as part of your arbitrage trade. Move onto the next trade.

2. When all the bets can be placed as singles there is one last VITAL step you need to take to ensure your risk-free arbitrage return. It is very simple but very important - check all the bookmakers rules in the event of an abandoned game. While this may seem unlikely, this sort of thing can happen in sport. Most bookmakers have standardised rules in such events but you should check with each bookie that you place your arbitrage investments with anyway. For example in some cases you may find that bookmaker A will payout depending on who technically won the tie (even if by default - e.g. tennis player going through by default because his opponent got injured), while bookmaker B will call off all bets and return your stake. As mentioned while such events are rare it is advised that when bookmakers rules in such instances are different you do NOT place the arbitrage investment. All bookmaker sites will have contact information and a list of rules where this information can be discovered.

That's it - just two simple rules that you should be aware of when placing arbitrage investments using the above three sites. You will find on many days that you can easily place 10 or more healthy (over 2%) arbitrage investments using these sites. This is free and easy money and you should make the most of this.

The information in this guide is worth its weight in gold. As we are at the end, my advice is to read it through again and start making some practice arbitrage trades. Once you realise that you're making profits 100% of the time you will feel much more comfortable investing your real money. There are people working a couple of hours a day who are making a full time living from arbitrage trading - with what you have learned here, you can trade with the best of them within a couple of weeks of practice. Best of luck!
